Palo Alto Networks
Subject Matter Expert

Calling all Cybersecurity Subject Matter Experts

Palo Alto Networks Certification Team is seeking individuals with cybersecurity industry knowledge to participate in our certification development process. The real life experience Subject Matter Experts (SMEs) bring to the table is critical in determining the appropriate level of expertise required to be successful in different job roles.

As a SME, you will work with your industry peers and Palo Alto Networks technical and sales teams to create or review exam content associated with cybersecurity technologies, skills and best practices. SMEs will participate in determining specific knowledge, skills and abilities when using Palo Alto Networks products and services.

Our goal is to create industry leading, globally recognized certifications which result in professional growth of individuals and successful adoption and implementations by global companies in securing their operating platforms.

SME resource commitment can range from virtual calls to in person meetings. The activities range from defining candidate qualifications, Job Task Analysis where knowledge, skills and abilities are determined, and item development and review.

If you are interested in becoming a Palo Alto Networks Subject Matter Expert, please send your resume to certification@paloaltonetworks.com. Make your subject line “SME Recruitment”, include which current Palo Alto Certification you hold, and your phone number.
